NOTES:

World News on Mineral Occurrences: Included in this list are only the N.H. entries, and their page numbers are only of those entries. Entries have been listed under sender's name where known; otherwise by the column conductor.

World News on Mineral Occurrences was conducted by Peter Zodac until 1966; conducted by Thomas J. McMahon from 1967 to 1969, conducted by V.T. King from 1977 to 1993.

Rochester Mineralogical Symposium, Abstracts: RMS Abstract refers to abstracts from the Rochester Mineralogical Symposium subsequently published in Rocks and Minerals magazine.

Each set of abstracts (in an individual issue) is usually titled something similar to "37th Rochester Mineralogical Symposium – Contributed Papers in Specimen Mineralogy" although in the past there have been some slight variations in wording; check the originals for their wording. For brevity, abstracts herein included have been listed under the author's names, and titles of the abstracts, and only include the page numbers of the abstracts, with the note of the RMS abstract in the annotations.

An entry, of unconfirmed provenance is not in the list, so is included here instead:

MILLER, F. William 1987 May

"Locality Information Sought" in Museum Notes and Announcements (R&M) 62:194 (a beryl crystal of unusual morphology, a hexagonal pyramid, etched, at Harvard University lacks provenance documentation, and Dr. Frondel had once said that "his recollection was that it had come from someone in Maine or New Hampshire." No further information is currently available as to whether this mystery was ever solved).

* in the November-December 1985 issue of Rocks and Minerals (v.60, #6), in the Letters column on page 261, was published a question about an apparent error on the November 1940 issue in which its front cover was printed "October 1940" (however, its title page, within, has the correct month of November printed) – this was a misprint as the editor explained. The editor's explanation also mentioned that the number of issues per volume published over the years has varied, has sometimes been 4, or 12, or 11, 10, or 6 issues per year or volume, and that the first year of publication (1926) there were only two issues.

Some of the issues of Rocks and Minerals were of double-month issues (such as July-August), although in many listings only the first month of the issue has been retained (such as July). The following table may help explain the system used in various years:

To find the volume # of a year, subtract 1925 from its year – this gives its volume (1926 is volume 1, its first year)
